RIGHT EFFORT: Making Dharma School Classrooms Anti-Racist Environments

Saturday, March 13, 2021 2:00 – 5:00 pm PST

Creating a safe and inclusive environment within our Dharma School classrooms is a goal for all of our chapters.

The Dharma helps us to get closer to this goal, but societal influences can hamper our efforts. What can we do to close the gap? A better understanding of how we got to this point and pausing to look within ourselves can help us as teachers to educate our students as we strive to reach our goal.

Zora Uyeda-Hale

Zora Uyeda-Hale is an 11th grader at Albany High School and attends Berkeley Buddhist Temple, where she serves as the JYBA President and Co-President of the Bay District JYBA. At school, Zora helps to lead Speak, a social justice education group, and is the co-leader of the school's Diversify Our Narrative educational justice committee. Zora has an ArtSpeak internship at the Asian Art Museum. When she has a free moment, Zora likes to crochet and dream of playing basketball at school again.

Kiyo Masuda

Since retiring from her work in education, Kiyo Masuda finally has time to develop one of her many interests – finding books that make the Dharma meaningful and relevant to children. Her twenty-five years in education included teaching elementary, middle school and high school and holding administrative positions at each level. As a Buddhist and educator, she realizes the importance of teaching children, from their formative years, the essence of how to live a happy life in gratitude.
